CAUTION

On June 5, 2014, an unknown male suspect robbed the First Capital Bank at 9819 Brownsboro Road, Louisville, Kentucky. The unknown suspect approached the bank from the east and entered through the front door carrying a cooler. The suspect immediately confronted a female teller from the opposite side of the counter and she asked him how he was doing. The suspect replied, "I'M NOT BAD FOR AN OLD GUY." He then placed a demand note on the counter which was written on a white envelope in blue ink and had stenciled letters. The note read, "ALL THE MONEY FROM BOTTOM DRAWER. NO DYE BOMBS. STAY COOL U BE OK." The victim teller thought it was a deposit slip and did not read it. Then, the suspect stated, "THIS IS A ROBBERY." The teller did not understand the suspect and he said, "THIS IS A ROBBERY. GIVE ME ALL YOUR MONEY. NOT THE BAIT OR I'LL HURT YOU BAD." The teller then realized she was being robbed and told the suspect she was working the drive-thru. The suspect stated, "GET YOUR KEYS AND GET ME ALL THE MONEY." The teller went to her station and removed the money from the top drawer. As the teller was doing so, the suspect moved from the teller counter to the pass-through door and waited. The teller brought the suspect the money and he placed it inside the lunch cooler he had carried in the bank with him. The suspect said, "THANK YOU VERY MUCH." He then turned and walked out the front door and was last seen eastbound from the bank.
